Introduction

Heavy metals are generated through various anthropogenic and natural activities. Heavy metals have an atomic number greater than 20 and an elemental density greater than 5 g cm<sup>3</sup>. Heavy metals include cadmium (Cd), chromium (Cr), mercury (Hg), lead (Pb), arsenic (As), silver (Ag), cobalt (Co), copper (Cu), zinc (Zn), iron (Fe), nickel (Ni), and platinum group elements (Ali et al. 2013; Ali and Khan 2018a, Saxena et al., 2020). Soils contaminated by different heavy metals and waters pose significant environmental and human health problems due to their non-biodegradable nature. Different physicochemical methods like ion exchange, precipitation, reverse osmosis, evaporation and chemical reduction and mechanical methods have been employed for their removal from the environment.

Effect of heavy metals on the environment

Chromium (Cr) is one of the pollutants mentioned as a non-essential element and ranks seventh in abundance in the earth's crust. Cr's major pollution or contamination is by the leather tanning industries, electroplating, and stainless steel industries (Dheri et al., 2007). Chromium pollution showed an impact on
