Respected sir

1) According to FYBSc practical syllabus (Sem. II) there is a practical entitled Study of comparative account of Dicotyledonous and Monocotyledonous plants. But in practical examination skeleton paper there will be no any question on this topic. Please add any one question on this topic in question paper.

2) In the same semester, it is very difficult to arrange various material which is required for practical like DNA extraction and checking it's purity by 260:280 ratio. So if it is possible please introduce another practical like DPD or Transpiration.

Thanking you

Respected Sir,
According to FYBSc revised syllabus (16th June 2020), for Semester II, three new practicals were added. One of the new practical is "Study of DPD by using suitable plant material".
According to SYBSc new CBCS syllabus (from 2020), for semester III, one of the practical is "Determination of Diffusion Pressure Deficit (DPD)". This experiment is not related to the theory syllabus of SYBSc.

I think both practicals are the same. I think the DPD experiment is related to FYBSc theory syllabus. Please guide us regarding the same.
